History of Popes

#235 – Urban VIII - Pope from Aug. 6, 1623 – death, July 29, 1644. Maffeo Barbarini was born April 5, 1568 in Florence. Following the death of his father when he was three, his mother took him to Rome where his uncle was a prominent layman in the papal court. He was educated by the Jesuits and received his law degree at age 21. In 1601, Maffeo was sent to the court of Henry IV of France as a papal legate and three years later was made Archbishop of Nazareth by Pope Clement VIII. He was made a cardinal by Pope Paul V in 1606 and later served as a legate to Bologna. The tenth-longest papacy in Church history began without much fanfare. Maffeo chose his name after Blessed Pope Urban II due to his desire to unite Christendom to overcome the Turks. His bull, In eminenti, began the Church's fight against Jansenism, a heresy that basically said humans have no real free will without God's grace, thus Jesus only died for some. Urban was active both politically and militarily, fighting to keep Italy independent and further balance power in Europe. He also built new fortifications and restored several key Roman churches. Pope Urban VIII is best known for ending the famed "Galileo Controversy." Galileo had initially been reprimanded by Cardinal Bellarmine and Pope Paul V for treating Copernicus' theory of heliocentrism (sun-at-the-center) as a scientific fact. We now know that the sun being at the center of the Solar System is a scientific fact, but the technology didn't yet exist to prove it. What's more, Galileo wanted to start disproving Scriptural interpretation using this very "fact." The pope allowed Galileo to write a work on heliocentrism but expressly told him to only offer arguments for and against the view. Galileo technically obeyed, but he also basically called the pope an idiot and ridiculed one of his Jesuit astronomer friends in the book. This act was treated with mild punishment. Though his views were condemned and he was required to recant his beliefs, Galileo was never tortured, his imprisonment was in a plush home with maid service, and the Church's infallibility remained intact, given that none of the criteria of infallible declarations were ever met in the first place. On November 18, 1626, Pope Urban VIII consecrated the new St. Peter's Basilica after Bernini installed its gigantic 66-foot Baldachin. It had been 1,300 years to the day since the very first St. Peter's Basilica was consecrated on the same spot.

STEWARDSHIP THOUGHTS

As we celebrate the Solemnity of the Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ or Corpus Christi Sunday, let us reflect on and give thanks for this heavenly gift which gives us food for our spiritual nourishment. When we receive the Eucharist, we are taking Jesus into ourselves and we pray that His power to transform will change us inwardly and our community of faith as well so that we all become more Christ-like in attitude and behavior. In our reflection, let's ask ourselves if the things we do and say are of Jesus. The Church is engaged in an Eucharistic Revival meant to rekindle a living relationship with Jesus in the Eucharist. This three year commitment includes Diocesan and Parish Revival leading to a National Eucharistic Congress. Too many Catholics lack an understanding of the Real Presence of Jesus in the Eucharist and that can not continue. The Eucharist is the source and summit of the Christian life (CCC 1130). Let us re-commit ourselves to Eucharistic devotion so that we can understand and proclaim to others how Jesus is really present in the Sacrament of the Eucharist.
